ABSTRACT

The booklet is intended for primary school teachers. It lists 22 suggested activities as well as ideas for using music, art, and bulletin boards for multicultural education. The purpose of the first activity is to provide opportunities to discuss great Americans of different ethnic backgrounds. An extensive list is included which contains members of many ethnic groups (mostly men) who have made contributions in medicine, sports, science, civil rights, the military, and entertainment. A bibliography of books and films is also included for both teachers and students. (CD)

INTRODUCTION

The unit supplement, "Opportunities For A Better America", gives support and encouragement to teachers in helping boys and girls to maintain the true spirit of democracy, and to find their places in our American way of life.

This material has been planned for use at the primary level and can be used any time of the year. Because primary children learn to do by doing, many of the learning experiences are planned around real-life experiences.

The purpose of this supplementary material is to develop an understanding and appreciation of the contributions of all men to our country's history. This should develop in all children a positive self-image.

"The purpose of a nation depends primarily upon the way its children are brought up a generation earlier. The way to improve the nation for tomorrow is to enlighten and strengthen the lives of children today."

Robert J. Havighurst

OBJECTIVES

To develop an understanding of and respect for the men of all races who by their significant endeavors have been the leaders in all phases of the growth and development of the United States of America.

To help children of all ethnic groups develop a positive self-image in the American way of life.

To enlighten and strengthen the lives of all children through a better understanding of current issues in order to improve our nation for tomorrow.

To provide children with experiences in seeing all ethnic groups at work in the development of the United States of America.

To develop wholesome attitudes toward democratic living.

To help every child achieve and maintain a sense of security and adequacy.

SUGGESTED MOTIVATIONAL TECHNIQUES

Planned Environment:

Prepare a stimulating bulletin board using pictures of people of various ethnic groups.

Display multi-ethnic books related to interesting subjects for children.

Prepared Environment:

Have children bring books or newspaper clippings showing people of different races participating in various events.

Show film depicting different ethnic groups.

Show film characterizing traits which all races have in common.

3. Third grade pupils may prepare discussions about children from other lands. (This may easily be correlated with adopted text.) Discuss these particular groups in relation to their contribution to the communities in which they have settled in America.
4. Discuss the importance of learning to live and work in harmony with all ethnic groups (courtesy, a sense of responsibility, and respect for others' feelings, rights, and privileges). Show films and filmstrips of people of different races working together.
5. Divide the children into committees to discover facts about the various nationalities of people who live in our country. Find pictures of these people and combine pictures and information into an interesting report.

The children can collect things made in other countries and by people of different nationalities. The exhibit can be set up in the library or museum corner and displayed with attractive signs explaining the countries of origin.

6. Locate on a world map or globe the countries from which the early settlers of our country came. Point out that our ancestors, even the Indians, have all come from other countries.

Discuss why various groups left their native lands to settle in this country.

7. Help the children to display a large map of the world, marking with colored pins the countries from which people came.

The children may wish to make a map key to show the group of people each pin represents.

8. Provide opportunities for children to visit local business firms to observe people of different ethnic backgrounds working together.
9. Provide opportunities to tell about different ways men and women go to work and how all races contribute to ways of transportation.

10. Ask pupils to collect information about the jobs of their fathers, mothers, and family friends.
11. Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of all jobs.
12. Plan experiences to provide extended information about community helpers such as the milkman, postman, policeman, fireman, etc. Include various ethnic groups.
13. Have a puppet show that depicts the work of all community helpers.
14. Have children make individual booklets of various occupations showing interdependence of people. Include occupations in which different ethnic groups are strongly represented.
15. Visit the local museum as a culmination to a study of Indian culture.
16. Guide children in discovering singing games and dances which have come to us from other countries. Make a list and let the children choose the ones to be learned.
17. Plan an "Americans All" program to review the contributions of various nationalities.
18. Invite people of different ethnic groups to visit the class and talk about their jobs, communities, historical backgrounds and travel experiences.
19. Discuss likenesses and differences in people, such as body build, height, weight, color, hair, etc.
20. Plan a mock TV program centered around people of various countries and their contributions to the building of America.

Have children prepare the script from various materials. The program can be complete with station name, channel, announcer, sponsors, and a singing commercial. (This could be a simple question - and - answer period reviewing content covered during a certain period.)

21. Present a pair of open questions (one at a time) which may reveal the ideas and feelings of children with regard to people of different nationalities. Encourage pupils to express themselves fully so that you can get clues about the attitudes of the pupils.
22. A volunteer disc jockey may collect and present for a good listening period some records of music from different countries - Italian songs, Irish tunes, Negro folk songs, etc.

Art:

Make a diorama depicting the life of all races, both long ago and today.

Make puppets of community helpers showing different nationalities.

Use clay model statues of all Americans who have contributed to America's development and growth.

Paint a tempera mural of a local industry showing different groups of people working together.

Make a simple map of the community.

Look for pictures of city workers from various ethnic groups. Paste these on manila or chart paper.

Paint or mold machines that have helped to bring about changes in our way of life.

Draw pictures of different families and homes.

Collect pictures of different mothers at work.

Draw different fathers doing different kinds of work.

Look for pictures of families engaged in different activities.

Construct a model of the community.

Make a picture of school helpers showing everyone from the principal to the custodial staff.

Bulletin Board Ideas

1. Display pictures of the various races working together in the community.
2. Display book jackets of books to be read. These books should include people of various races.
3. Display experience stories and pictures of places visited where the different races were working together.
4. Motivate and stimulate pupils to do drawings of stories read by the children and teacher. Use these for display purposes.
5. Arrange a display of articles from magazines and newspapers.
